APPENDICES 41
OUM Facilitator’s Handbook is a step-by-step guide for facilitators attached to Open University Malaysia (OUM). As facilitators, you play a crucial role at the University as you are the ones in direct contact with our learners. As you render your services on a part-time basis at learning centres spread throughout the country, this handbook is intended as a useful and practical companion for you in carrying out the noble task of educating our learners. This guide also highlights the standards to follow in relation to the facilitating process and procedures.

This handbook addresses three phases of facilitation – before, during and after. It is hoped that this handbook will help you find answers to the following questions:

- What are the roles and responsibilities of a facilitator?
- What is expected of a facilitator?
- How can a facilitator become effective?
- What are the tools to be used by a facilitator?
- What are the administrative tasks of a facilitator?

Ideally, it should be read through from the beginning until the end the first time and then referred to regularly during the facilitating process.
This handbook is the outcome of an internal team effort involving OUM’s Centre for Instructional Design and Technology (CiDT), Centre for Tutor Management and Development (CTMD) and Centre for Graduate Studies (CGS).

Special thanks go to Prof. Dr. Zoraini Wati Abas who headed the writing team. Our sincere gratitude also goes to Senior Vice President Prof. Dr. Mansor Fadzil for providing continuous guidance and support to the team. Appreciation is also owed to General Manager (Administration)/Registrar, Puan Kamariah Mohd Noor, Director of CiDT, Datin Halimatolhanin Mohd Khalid, Prof. Dr. Rahmah Hashim, Director of CGS, Assoc. Prof. Dr. Santhi Raghavan, Director of CTMD, Puan Nik Azlina Nik Yaacob, former Senior Manager of CTMD and Director of Perak Learning Centre, Mr. Richard Ng, for their insightful comments and helpful suggestions to further enhance the content.

Lastly, we would like to thank the Dean of the Faculty of Education and Languages, Assoc. Prof. Dr. Widad Othman, as well as faculty members, Prof. Dr. Abtar Kaur a/p Darshan Singh and Prof. Dr. Kuldip Kaur @ Kadip Kaur a/p Karam Singh for their past contributions to facilitator training and development. Their earlier work had provided the basis on which we developed this handbook.
Facilitators play a crucial role in the provision of open and distance education at OUM. You, as facilitators, are the main agents responsible for delivering courses and supporting learners. The quality of teaching and learning depends on you.

Through the classroom setting and the online learning system provided by OUM, facilitators need to actively engage the learners in the process of acquiring knowledge that is relevant and useful to them. Therefore, facilitators must have appropriate skills and attributes in addition to subject matter expertise.

This is where the Facilitator’s Handbook can play a part. It has been prepared by the University to serve as a handbook for our facilitators. It outlines the roles and responsibilities of facilitators at OUM and the expectations you need to meet. It provides guidance on how to become effective facilitators.

The handbook also lays out the facilitating process in a step-by-step style for the convenience and comprehension of our facilitators. From the point where a facilitator is appointed up to the point that he/she receives remuneration for the services rendered, everything is explained in a clear and easy-to-read format.

It is the University’s wish that all our facilitators would treat this Facilitator’s Handbook as a handy reference in carrying out the noble task of educating our learners. If you have any ideas or suggestions on how we could further improve this handbook so that it could serve you and your fellow facilitators even better, please do contact us.

Lastly, the University hopes you will perform your role as an OUM facilitator with passion and professionalism, because you are a major part in helping us reach our goal of making quality education available to everyone.
Open University Malaysia (OUM) is the first open and distance learning university in Malaysia. It is also the country’s seventh private university. Established in August 2000, OUM was launched by former Prime Minister, YAB Tun Dr Mahathir Mohamad, on 26 August 2002. Its main campus is located at Jalan Tun Ismail in Kuala Lumpur.

OUM currently has 61 Learning Centres throughout Malaysia (see Figure 1.1). It is owned by a consortium of 11 Malaysian public universities – Universiti Malaya, Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia, Universiti Teknologi MARA, Universiti Pendidikan Sultan Idris, Universiti Utara Malaysia, Universiti Putra Malaysia, Universiti Sains Malaysia, Universiti Malaysia Sabah, Universiti Malaysia Sarawak, Universiti Teknologi Malaysia and Universiti Islam Antarabangsa Malaysia. Starting with an intake of 753 learners in August 2001, OUM has admitted more than 70,000 learners into over 50 diploma, degree and postgraduate degree programmes.

OUM’s vision is to be the leading provider of flexible learning.

In line with our vision, our mission is to:

1. Widen access to quality education and provide lifelong learning opportunities by leveraging on technology;
2. Adopt flexible mode of learning; and
3. Provide a conducive and engaging learning environment at competitive and affordable cost.

Having paved the way as the first open and distance learning university in Malaysia, OUM aims to continue providing leadership by developing innovative approaches in the field of open and distance learning not only in Malaysia but also internationally. Facilitators must therefore understand and internalise our vision and mission so that you can effectively help the University achieve this goal.

What is open and distance learning? The following definition was provided by the Commonwealth of Learning.

Open and distance learning refers to education and training in which using the learning resources, rather than attending classroom sessions, is the central feature of the learning experience.

(Commonwealth of Learning, 2003, p. 13)

OUM practises a blended pedagogy which comprises self-managed learning, face-to-face seminars and online learning (see Figure 1.2). Modified blended learning (MBL) is made available when the number of postgraduate learners is between 2 to 5.
At OUM, one credit hour is equivalent to 40 learning hours. Thus, the total learning hours for a typical three-credit-hour course is 120 learning hours. The recommended distribution of learning hours is shown in Figure 1.3.

Learners will engage in three modes of learning. While the bulk of study time will be spent on self-managed learning (80%), they will also have to allocate time for online learning (12%) and face-to-face seminars (8%).

SEMMESTER SYSTEM

The postgraduate programme at OUM practises a trimester system which consists of three equal semesters (January, May and September). Table 1.1 shows the distribution of weeks per semester as follows:

ASSESSMENT SYSTEM

Learners are assessed through two components:

1. Continuous Assessment
   Learners are evaluated during the semester through assignments, project papers, and other practical sessions.

2. Examinations
   These refer to the Final Semester Examination, Qualifying Examination (QE) and Viva Voce.

However, not all of these assessment methods are applicable to all courses. It depends on the requirements of each course. For more details, refer to the course guide in the print module.

A more complete overview of the University is available in the OUM prospectus and portal.
Facilitators are expected to provide quality learning support in face-to-face (F2F) and online sessions. This requires you to possess excellent interpersonal and communication skills as well as mastery of your subject content. You need excellent interpersonal and communication skills so that you can make learning pleasant and reduce learner anxiety. Your mastery of the subject content will ensure that learners understand it better.

In relation to this, there are four main roles you need to perform (see Figure 2.1).

In order to provide quality support to your learners, you need to understand the expectations of OUM learners. You must strive to meet their expectations, be responsible and accountable within the context of the University’s blended learning pedagogy. This means you need to carry out each of your tasks in the way outlined by OUM.

To be an effective facilitator, you must know who your learners are. As our learners are mostly working adults, they have different learning needs compared to learners who are fresh school-leavers. So, who are OUM learners?

About 95% of our learners are working adults who are aged between 20 and 50 years old. According to Knowles (1984), adult learners have the following characteristics:
Usually, a learner is:

(i) A working adult with little time left for himself/herself;
(ii) Between 20 and 50 years old and hence, more experienced and mature than the typical learner we know;
(iii) Married with children and aged parents to look after;
(iv) Studies in whatever little time he/she has between daily chores and responsibilities; and
(v) May have very little knowledge about computers and the Internet.

As some learners are older and wiser than their coursemates, they could share their past experiences with the younger ones. A small percentage of learners are physically challenged and may have limited physical movements. Others may be constrained by job demands or geographically isolated and are at times absent from their face-to-face seminars. This handbook aims to create awareness of the importance of a learner’s profile in the facilitating process.
LEARNERS’ EXPECTATIONS

According to our learners, they expect their facilitators to:

1. Possess good communication skills (use simple language and speak clearly);
2. Be experienced and knowledgeable in the subject taught;
3. Provide additional and appropriate learning materials;
4. Take the lead in the myLMS online discussion forum;
5. Provide timely guidance and response to learners especially on assignment preparation;
6. Provide valuable and meaningful feedback on facilitator-marked assignments;
7. Allocate time to discuss exam questions with learners;
8. Have a sense of humour;
9. Be friendly and approachable;
10. Provide examples that are relevant and easy to understand; and
11. Be easily contactable via telephone and e-mail.

BEING EFFECTIVE

How do you become an effective facilitator? Here are the steps we encourage you to take:

(i) Understand OUM’s Vision and Mission
Our vision and mission act as guiding principles for all actions and decisions of the management and staff including facilitators. Therefore, you need to understand and consider these principles in carrying out your work.

(ii) Subscribe to OUM’s Shared Values
OUM has five shared values – Integrity, Professionalism, Caring, Innovativeness and Teamwork. By practising these shared values, you can play a significant part in helping OUM to achieve its vision and mission.

The shared values are explained below:

- Integrity – Informing the Administrator if you are not available or cannot cope with additional facilitating responsibility, being punctual and responding to your learners’ enquiries.
- Professionalism – Respecting your learners as individuals.
- Caring – Understanding the challenges learners may face and being reasonable in your response. Remember to be empathetic but not sympathetic.
• Innovativeness – Applying new ideas into the facilitating process to make learning effective.

• Teamwork – Applying cooperative effort by the members of a group or team to achieve a common goal.

(iii) Upgrade Knowledge and Techniques
In order to provide quality education, you must constantly upgrade your knowledge. This can be done by reading, engaging in research activities and attending conferences related to open and distance learning. As a facilitator, you have access to OUM’s digital collection of useful resources. OUM also provides an online bulletin called Tutor Connexxions, which facilitators are encouraged to read and contribute to. Interested facilitators can also apply for research grants and sponsorship to attend conferences. Those who want to pursue higher studies in OUM are also given discounts.

(iv) Seek Continuous Improvement
Be proactive in planning, guiding and facilitating both face-to-face seminars and online discussion forums. Look out for innovative ways to enhance your facilitating approach and upgrade your performance every semester.

(v) Go for Trainings
Trainings and/or colloquiums are organised from time to time to introduce the latest information and techniques to facilitators. You are encouraged to attend these sessions. As a facilitator, you should strive to improve your ICT skills so that you can provide excellent online support to your learners. OUM encourages facilitators to share success stories with other facilitators through trainings and/ or colloquiums.

(vi) Provide Support Services
Our learners are mostly working adults who live off-campus. In furthering their education, they have to juggle between family, work and study responsibilities. As such, they face various pressures, challenges and obstacles. As a facilitator, you need to understand their situation and provide timely feedback and response in the most efficient manner. Therefore, you must be well-informed and connected to the support system provided by OUM.
(vii) Take Part in OUM Activities
Facilitators are encouraged to participate in all activities organised by OUM whether academic or non-academic, so as to foster closer ties with the management and learners. A good working relationship can help generate a sense of belonging towards OUM.

(viii) Walk the Extra Mile
OUM facilitators are expected to walk the extra mile. OUM understands that you are a part-timer and thus responsible to your full-time employer. However, whenever and wherever possible, you need to find ways to impart knowledge and assist your learners.

To help you do an excellent job, you may practise the six habits of a highly effective facilitator, which are outlined in Figure 2.2. According to Truschel (2007) who wrote about tutoring services, these habits include being proactive, assessing learners, developing a working alliance, modelling appropriate behaviour, matching learning styles with facilitator styles and communicating effectively. We believe that if you practise all these six habits, you will be able to make a difference in the lives of your learners, inspiring them to greater heights of academic success.

LEARNING PROCESS

Learners at OUM will undertake learning according to the University’s blended pedagogy. Figure 2.3 shows the typical learning process in a semester. You need to keep this process in mind when facilitating.

Learning Process

MOTIVATING YOUR LEARNERS

Your primary responsibility as a facilitator is to create a continuously motivating learning environment. Motivation is the key to all successful learning. How do you motivate your learners? You can do this by:

- Relating issues in seminars to learners’ real-life context.
- Being enthusiastic about content, process and learners.
- Making your expectations clear. Let learners know how they can succeed in seminars.
- Being sensitive and responsive to group needs and flexible in meeting them.
In order to motivate learners, you have to understand the challenges they face. Let us go through each of the challenges and see how you can help learners to overcome them.

Learning challenges prevent learners from focusing optimally on their learning. These challenges are often related to one or more of the aspects shown in Figure 2.4.

(a) Coping with Stress and Anxiety
When encountering new learning experiences, learners often display a lot of enthusiasm but they may also experience some anxiety. These feelings may lead to stressful situations. Often, self-managed learners are stressed when they have to face issues related to academic performance, work, family, friends and finances.

As a facilitator, you need to reassure your learners that you are aware of their concerns. Offer them appropriate guidance and advice. The following are some stress management strategies:

- Get organised;
- Think positive;
- Exercise control over your environment; and
- Take a break when necessary.

(b) Managing Time
As working adults, many OUM learners find it difficult to cope with their course workload and complete assignments on time. They may have a demanding job or pressing family commitments. Thus, their learning commitments have to be balanced with their family and work commitments. This demands effective time management.
Assist your learners in managing their time effectively. You can do this by reassuring them that the course workload can be made more manageable. You can work out some strategies of doing this together with the learner. If a learner lacks confidence in tackling a task or assignment, you can encourage him/her to divide it into manageable chunks.

(c) Staying Focused
Helping your learners to deal with obstacles to learning is an important responsibility of an OUM facilitator. Obstacles prevent learners from focusing optimally on their learning. One or more of unexpected events like illness, job commitments, transport problems or the demands of a child or an elderly dependent will drive away their focus on learning.

As a facilitator, be sensitive to these disruptions. Any changes in a learner’s learning may indicate a problem that needs investigation. Find out the problem and express your concern but do not make the learner feel guilty. Be positive, encouraging and state your willingness to help.

(d) Developing ICT and Information Literacy Skills
Learning in an open and distance learning mode requires learners to possess basic ICT skills. At OUM, face-to-face seminars are very limited. Thus, it is crucial for learners to learn how to:

- Operate a personal computer
- Surf the Internet
- Use myLMS
- Participate in online discussion forums
- Access and use the OUM Tan Sri Dr Abdullah Sanusi (TSDAS) Digital Library

Learners may have different levels of ICT skills. Some might be afraid to use a computer. Therefore, knowing the level of learners’ ICT skills will help you to use suitable strategies to guide them.

   As a facilitator in an ODL learning environment, you will encounter new challenges. As you deal with them, you will acquire new skills and experience.

8. Opportunities for Research
   OUM encourages its facilitators to carry out research to enhance their skills and capabilities. The University has allocations for research grants, particularly institutional research. You are welcomed to participate in OUM’s researches. If you are interested, you may write to the Director, Institute of Quality, Research and Innovation (IQRI), Level 10, PWTC, 50480, Jalan Tun Ismail, Open University Malaysia.

UNETHICAL ISSUES

Absence without Valid Reasons
Facilitators are not allowed to cancel or postpone seminars without valid reasons. This is because time management is very critical to our learners. Besides commitment to work, learners have to balance study time and fulfilling family obligations at the same time. As learners do not stay on campus and are geographically distributed, it is even more challenging for them to attend seminars. There are learners who need to travel by air or by boat for several hours and sleep overnight in budget hotels one day before seminar to attend seminar classes. There are others who sleep in the car or while traveling in the bus or train, etc. They make great sacrifices to attend seminars and so OUM takes facilitator’s punctuality and class postponement/cancellation very seriously.

If you need to postpone a class due to medical or other unavoidable reasons, please inform the Administrator at the respective Learning Centre at least one week before the seminar date. They might allow you to replace the class before the actual seminar date or get a substitute facilitator (a qualified one) to conduct the class in your absence.

Confidentiality and Intellectual Property Rights
All information received during your service at OUM with regard to the administration, learners’ records and finances, including the course and facilitator training materials, are the property of OUM. The information is supplied to you to enable you to perform your tasks as a facilitator. The information must never be used for purposes other than for facilitating and matters related to facilitating at OUM.

Dishonesty
Dishonest acts such as bribery are unacceptable. You must always encourage good practices and firmly reject any form of bribery. Accepting gifts in return for high marks, adjusting grades and threatening learners with low grades are examples of dishonest practices.

In addition, you should never receive any extra payment from your learners for giving them extra classes. If you feel that extra classes could help learners achieve their learning outcomes, please discuss this with the Administrator of the Learning Centre to incorporate your suggestion in the University’s arrangement/activities.

Inform the Administrator if someone you know personally is a learner in your class. The Administrator may transfer the learner to another class to ensure that fair judgment is given on the learner’s assignment, tests and online participation.

Disciplinary Proceedings
You are legally responsible for your actions during your service at OUM. The University has the right to terminate your contract if it finds you guilty of any offence or disciplinary misconduct. Disciplinary action may be taken over negligence of duty, misconduct or criminal conviction.

Public Statement
Facilitators are prohibited from making any public statement about OUM to the media without prior consent. Please make sure that you obtain written approval from the University if you must do so.

Collecting Funds or Donations
Facilitators are prohibited from collecting funds or donations from learners for charitable or personal purposes. Action will be taken against those who violate this ruling.

Facilitators who are found to be involved in the abovementioned unethical activities will be dismissed, subject to the University’s procedures.
As facilitators of OUM, you are required to provide seminar support for face-to-face seminars, online learning and self-managed learning. Although the bulk of your tasks will revolve around face-to-face seminars, you need to pay adequate attention to the other parts of the blended pedagogy as well.

In order to conduct seminars successfully, you should engage in the following pre-seminar activities:

(a) Read the Facilitator’s Handbook. Attend the Training for Facilitators session. It is compulsory for all new facilitators.

(b) Read the module or textbook.

(c) Login to the myLMS portal

(d) Prepare and plan for the seminars

We will now explain each of these activities.

(a) Attend the Training for Facilitator session
   After you have been appointed as an OUM facilitator, one of the first things you must do is attend the facilitator training session at one of OUM’s 61 Learning Centres. Each Learning Centre is managed by a team led by a Director. The training will be held before the semester begins. This training session is compulsory for all new facilitators.

   Upon successful completion of the training, you will be given a letter of appointment. If there is a course for you to facilitate, you will be contacted by the Director of the Learning Centre. You will be given the schedule for the seminars and expected to report to the Director. For your valuable contributions, OUM will provide remuneration as specified in the payment schedule (see Table 6.1 in Chapter 6).

(b) Read the Module or Textbook
   Based on OUM’s blended learning pedagogy, the print module/textbook serves as the core learning material which drives all other learning activities (see Figure 3.1). The print module/textbook contains the necessary content, activities and exercises written by experienced academics. As a facilitator, it is crucial for you to be well-versed with the module/textbook. Therefore, reading the module/textbook is a must before you start facilitating and you should also do extra reading where necessary. You can collect your module/textbook from the Administrators of the Learning Centre.

Note that some modules/textbooks may have accompanying multimedia materials. Please ensure that you collect them or check their availability through myLMS. You must familiarise yourself with all the materials.

!Diagram of Print Modules and myLMS

(c) Login to the myLMS Portal

OUM’s learning management system is called myLMS. It is primarily a platform for virtual interactions. MyLMS is an e-learning platform which supports and enhances the teaching and learning process. You can create and upload learning resources and activities for learners as well as monitor their learning progress through myLMS. It is an integrated portal which facilitates more than just learning. You and your learners can access the latest information and news related to OUM as well as resources and links identified by the University. For more information, refer to the myLMS guide in the OUM portal.
Now, we strongly encourage you to go into myLMS. Follow the step-by-step guide provided on how to login for the first time.

Step-By-Step Guide for First Time Login

1. Visit the OUM portal at http://www.oum.edu.my

2. Click on First Time Login (OUM).

3. Key in your identity card (IC) number and click on the Submit button (as above).
4. Create your preferred username and password in the respective boxes. Confirm the availability of your preferred username by clicking on the Check Username Availability button. Once you have entered all the details, click on the Submit button.

5. Key in your mother’s name for security purposes. The information will be used as a hint if you forget your username or password.

6. Congratulations, you have successfully completed your first login attempt. Click on “please click this link to continue.” You will be directed to the OUM portal once again. You may now use your username and password.

Step-By-Step Guide to Update Personal Particulars
1. Visit the OUM portal at http://www.oum.edu.my and enter your username and password.

2. Click on the myLMS icon.

3. Click on the User Profiles button.

4. Click on the Amend button to update your personal particulars.

5. Click on the Save button. Lastly, click on the Close button and your particulars will be updated.

(d) Plan for the Seminars

Now that you have read the module and become acquainted with myLMS, it is time for you to plan your face-to-face seminars (refer to Table 3.1).
Table 3.1: Example of Three Equal Semester Plan

<table>
<thead>
<tr>

</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Lesson Review&lt;br&gt;(To enhance learners’ understanding of content and motivate them)</td>

<td>End the Session&lt;br&gt;(To motivate learners and prepare them for the coming session)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

You are responsible for ensuring that your learners understand the subject matter. Give effective explanations by providing various relevant and meaningful examples. Explain content and concepts in an interesting manner. This may be conducted in a mini lecture. You may use activities and exercises in the module. Where appropriate, get learners to work in small groups to reinforce their understanding. You are encouraged to prepare supplementary resources and materials for them to ensure that the learning outcomes of the course are met.

Create a warm and friendly learning environment. Be approachable and show a sense of humour where appropriate. Most importantly, respect the rights of your learners as students of the University. In order to do this, you need to:

- Come well prepared;
- Start and end seminars on time;
- Provide proper guidance and feedback;
- Grade assignments and OLP fairly and on time;
- Be open to your learners’ views and opinions;
- Treat your learners with respect; and
- Dress and behave appropriately.

In addition, you should provide constructive feedback to learners so that they can complete their assignments successfully. You can do this by:

(i) Clarifying assignment tasks and options;
(ii) Suggesting print and online references;
(iii) Providing suitable ongoing feedback on selected sections of a learner’s assignment; and
(iv) Giving adequate notice about submission deadlines.
As our learners may face various challenges related to work, family, time and money, be prepared to provide moral support as well. Provide encouragement and motivation to sustain their interest in completing the course.

If you have learners who are low achievers, please:

(i) Explain to them the importance of getting good grades and improving their CGPA;

(ii) Remind them regularly to read the module/textbook before coming to seminars;

(iii) Encourage them to take part in online discussion forums;

(iv) Conduct follow-up through e-mails, text messages and phone calls; and

(v) Motivate them to ask questions and seek clarification.

Learners are required to submit their assignment in the fourth seminar (depending on the Course Format).
OUR FACILITATING PROCESS

SELF-MANAGED LEARNING

OUM’s blended pedagogy requires our learners to engage in self-managed learning most of the time. However, facilitators have a crucial role to play. You need to consistently provide your learners with moral support and encouragement throughout their learning process. This includes providing academic counselling.

Academic Counselling
As our learners are adult and distance learners, there are two important implications for the provision of academic counselling.

- Dealing with Adult Learners
  The very nature of the OUM’s instructional model – distance learning – means that a considerable proportion of the difficulties and challenges that OUM learners encounter, and which require counselling, are related to academic issues. These academic issues may, however, be intertwined with the personal and professional lives of the learners. For instance, learners may encounter difficulties in completing assignments because of their work demands.

- Geographical Challenges
  The limited number of opportunities for face-to-face interaction between facilitators and learners means that, more often than not, counselling on academic issues has to be conducted online. Facilitators can do so via the online forum or e-mail. But these two modes of communication are asynchronous, meaning that there would be a delay between the posting of a query and its reply.

However, regardless of the mode chosen, you need to advise, help and support your learners so that they can make satisfactory academic progress. Use your understanding and interpersonal skills to help them overcome learning difficulties and challenges. Counsel them on how to:

- Stay motivated;
- Prepare for assignments and examinations;
- Manage time and other priorities;
- Improve self-esteem; and
- Improve communication skills.
Usually, learners also require advice on the following:

(a) How to Study?
At OUM, learners are encouraged to become independent. You must encourage your learners to maximise on OUM’s three learning modes – self-managed learning, face-to-face seminars and online learning.

(b) Assignments
Learners often get anxious when they are given assignments. Most of them fear that they might not complete it by the deadline as they are adult learners with a lot of other commitments. Therefore, you have to constantly remind them to do the following:

- Manage time effectively;
- Organise a work schedule; and
- Work in groups.

(c) How to Prepare for Exams?
Learners often fear that they might not perform well in exams. Thus, you should advise your learners to:

- Have a complete set of notes;
- Study in a group;
- Communicate with facilitators often;
- Be focused; and
- Be prepared.

The myLMS learning platform is used to deliver online learning at OUM. The primary aim of this platform is to strengthen learning.

All OUM facilitators must not only be involved in face-to-face seminars but also support learning through the online discussion forums available via myLMS. You must take the lead in these forums and encourage active participation from all your learners. Your main objective should be to ensure that learners explore and learn important concepts and applications through the online discussion forum.

What is an online discussion forum? It is an asynchronous communication medium which involves the facilitator posting a question and learners posting their responses at a later time. Learners have more time to reflect on a topic or question before posting a message. The facilitator can monitor participation and determine how far your learners have understood a lesson.

For these forums to be effective, expectations and requirements must be made clear from the beginning. These forums are important because they enable learners to learn outside the classroom and to benefit from postings and discussions with their facilitators and peers.

A well-established model for online learning is the Community of Inquiry (COI) Model (Garrison, Anderson & Archer, 2000). The COI Model comprises three important elements: social, cognitive and teaching presence (see Figure 3.2). Arbaugh, Cleveland-Innes, Diaz, Garrison, Ice, Richardson, Shea and Swan (2007) define the three elements as follows:

- Social presence is the ability of participants to project themselves purposefully and socially within a community of inquiry.

- Cognitive presence is the extent to which participants critically reflect, (re)construct meaning and engage in discourse for the purpose of sharing meaning and confirming understanding.

- Teaching presence is the design, facilitation and direction of cognitive and social processes for the purpose of realising personally meaningful and educationally worthwhile learning outcomes.

The COI model is based on a few characteristics that are inquiry-based. Firstly, it is question-driven whereby facilitators probe learners with thought-provoking and stimulating questions. Secondly, learners are involved in a critical discourse where they learn how to define and propose reasonable solutions to issues. Thirdly, learners gather information, thus enhancing their research skills to support their postings.

You need to know how best to manage online discussion forums. Please observe the steps in Table 3.2.

Welcome Message
Welcome to BMOM5103 – Organisational Management. I am Sulaiman bin Johar, your facilitator for this particular subject. Let me start by saying, "selamat datang and salam perkenalan" to all my students who are taking the BMOM5103 course for this semester.

BMOM5103 is a compulsory course for all Master of Management students. As an open and distance learner, you need to know how to self-manage your learning and benefit from your seminars and online discussions.

As your facilitator, I will do my best to help you achieve the learning outcomes of the course; however, you must do your part. For example, read the module before coming to the seminar, participate in the online discussion forum weekly and start your assignment early.

See you all in Seminar 1 two weekends from now. Don’t forget to read Topics 1 & 2 of your BMOM5103 module.

Remember that online discussion forums are meant to benefit learners. They make up 12% of the learning experience of our learners compared to only 8% of face-to-face learning. You need to lead and monitor the forums to ensure the quality of the discussions. Therefore, you must post at least two questions before each seminar to stimulate discussion. These questions must be related to the learning outcomes stated in the module/textbook.
CHAPTER 4
OUR ASSESSMENT METHODS

You are required to evaluate your learners’ performance through the following assessment methods:

- Assignment
- Online Learning Participation (OLP)

Facilitators are required to grade assignments in a fair and objective manner. You must ensure that the assignments contain the necessary components appropriate for the subject. It is important that you observe the originality of the assignments. Do not tolerate any kind of copying, plagiarism or hiring of a “professional” to write an assignment. Make learners understand that they will miss a very important part of learning if they take the easy way out.

The University has agreed to allow and support facilitators in giving zero marks to learners involved in plagiarism or producing identical assignments. You are also allowed to deduct one mark per day for late submission.

Grading of Assignment
Facilitators need to follow a marking scheme when grading assignments. However, in general, they must ensure that an assignment:

- Meets the requirements of the assignment question;
- Follows the required format and length;
- Shows a clear and logical flow of presentation;
- Is well written;
- Has referred to recent, relevant and appropriate sources; and
- Contains a full bibliography and appropriate referencing.

Feedback on Assignment
After grading, please key in the marks into the Online Marks Entry System (OMES) by the deadline given to you. You may find the deadlines for every semester posted on myLMS or noticeboards at Learning Centre. General deadlines are shown in Table 4.1.

When entering marks into the OMES (see Figure 4.1), please do the following:

- Double-check all entries to ensure accuracy;
- Correct mistakes, if any;
- Avoid leaving any empty space;
- Save marks entered regularly; and
- Ensure that all learners’ marks have been entered.

Please refer to the OMES Manual for details on how to use the OMES. If you face any difficulty in entering the marks, contact the Administrator at your Learning Centre.

You should be specific when writing your comments and help learners to understand how they could have done better and how to improve their future assignments. See the examples of good and poor feedback in Figure 4.2.
Good Feedback: What Facilitators Should Do

Fulfils all task requirements. Very good summary as it covers most of the key points. Lesson plans are relevant and well-planned but could have added more details. The lesson planned to teach theme lacks focus and interest value. Good presentation of assignment.

or

Good introduction. Main content well-explained with relevant examples. Conclusion includes analytical ability and understanding of the learning outcomes. Improve on APA referencing.

Poor/General Feedback: What Facilitators Should Not Do

Well done. Nice job!!

or

Good. Keep it up!

In order to encourage learners to participate actively online, marks will be awarded. Facilitators are to grade learners based on quality of postings and responses in the online forum and also classroom participation in situations where the myLMS cannot be accessed.
OUM has an excellent digital library. The Tan Sri Dr Abdullah Sanusi (TSDAS) Digital Library has more than 23,000 titles of books in the main campus and learning centres nationwide.

In order to access our digital library, log into the OUM portal and click on the myLibrary icon.

As for its digital collection, the online databases consist of electronic books (e-books) and electronic journals (e-journals). E-books enable learners to read and make notes and annotations online while e-journals can be used to search for articles from scholarly journals worldwide. To date, the digital library has access to more than 53,000 titles of e-books and 22,000 titles of e-journals.

The library provides interlibrary loans and registered users can renew their books online or access the digital contents from any place in the world through the Internet. You will find the Online Public Access Catalogue (OPAC) very useful in retrieving records of print collections through keyword search. Refer to the e-journal and online book databases in Table 5.1.

CHAPTER 6
OUR ADMINISTRATIVE MATTERS

LEARNING CENTRES

Each Learning Centre is placed under a Director, who is responsible for its overall management. A Learning Centre has several functions:

- Academic centre: It is where learners attend tutorials and seminars.
- Administrative centre: This is where administrative matters are addressed, processed and carried out.
- Resource centre: It has a mini library, computer labs with Internet access and meeting room.
- Learning hub: It is a meeting point for learners’ development and activities.

Each Learning Centre may have one or more Lead Facilitators. The Lead Facilitator is appointed by the Senior Vice President of OUM and reports to the Director of the Learning Centre. The Lead Facilitator assists with academic-related administration. He/she is involved in interviewing, training and monitoring facilitators. In addition, he/she may help to conduct academic workshops for learners such as Information Skills, use of Digital Library and myLMS.

CENTRE FOR TUTOR MANAGEMENT AND DEVELOPMENT

Based at OUM headquarters in Kuala Lumpur, the Centre for Tutor Management and Development (CTMD) is responsible for the overall management of tutors and facilitators, ensuring that they support OUM’s blended learning pedagogical approach. The CTMD is headed by a Director who reports to the Senior Vice President of OUM.

The centre is responsible for:

- Recruitment;
- Training and development;
- Monitoring and evaluation;
- Re-appointment; and
- Termination.
OUM maintains a pool of thousands of facilitators from various fields and expertise at various locations. Upon successful recruitment, facilitators are given a one-year contract offer letter as a facilitator at OUM. However, this does not mean that a slot will be given in the time table to every facilitator. This offer letter indicates that a facilitator is now in OUM’s facilitator pool. Your biodata is kept in the University database for selection to conduct seminar classes depending on the availability of seminar slots. Generally, availability of seminar slots depend on the courses offered and students’ registration.

When there is an available slot for facilitating, the Administrator at the Learning Centre will contact you to offer the slot based on the seminar class schedule. If you accept the offer, you will be given another offer letter stating the course that you will be designated to for the coming semester. The appointment of facilitators for courses is done on semester basis. A new offer will be made every semester depending on the facilitator requirement at the Learning Centre.

You will be re-appointed if there are available slots and also based on your performance record. If seminar slots are limited, priority will be given to facilitators who are more senior. According to University policy, each facilitator would be given a maximum of two seminar slots per semester except for courses with limited expertise. Whenever possible, new recruitment would be done to avoid giving more than two seminar slots to one facilitator.

In order to ensure the quality of teaching and learning at OUM, feedback is gathered on the performance of facilitators through the following:

- Facilitator Evaluation Form: Learners are expected to evaluate their facilitators towards the end of the semester.

- Class observation and monitoring: Facilitators’ conduct of seminar sessions is observed by the Administrator/Programme Coordinator/academicians.

- E-mail: Learners may provide feedback via e-mail to aduan@oum.edu.my

- Learner/Facilitator Dialogue Sessions: Learning Centres regularly hold sessions to collect feedback. OUM’s top management is usually present at these sessions.
TERMINATION OF SERVICE

Both OUM and facilitators have the right to terminate the contract of service by submitting one month’s notice to the Administrator or Director of CTMD. The University requires you to give learners’ interest top priority and maintain professionalism until the end of your contract. Where possible, do not end your service in the middle of a semester as this may affect your learners’ learning process.

If you have to resign, please properly hand over your tasks to the replacing facilitator or to the Administrator. Please immediately return all assignments, learners’ records and course materials that are in your possession to the Administrator.

REMUNERATIONS

Now that you have successfully performed your duty as a facilitator, you need to submit your claims to the Director of the Learning Centre.

Payment rates for the postgraduate programme are shown in Table 6.1.
